CALCULATED RULE: DIAGNOSTIC_A6D8BA88-28ED-4F95-97CD-71A2361F33EE

Top five pain points

1. Customer follow-up lacks a shared system

Priority 95

Fragmented customer records make enquiries easier to miss and follow-up harder to manage consistently.

evidence_current0009	evidence_current0014	evidence_current0018	evidence_current0020	evidence_current0022
evidence_current0024

2. Decision data is difficult to use consistently

Priority 86.3

Limited usable data and disconnected customer information reduce visibility for timely business decisions.

evidence_current0009	evidence_current0018	evidence_current0022	evidence_current0024	evidence_current0027
----------------------	----------------------	----------------------	----------------------	----------------------

3. Inconsistent processes constrain growth

Priority 86.3

Work that depends on inconsistent steps becomes harder to coordinate as volume and team size increase.

evidence_current0017	evidence_current0018	evidence_current0019	evidence_current0022	evidence_current0024
evidence_current0029

4. Team collaboration lacks a shared digital foundation

Priority 76.3

Disconnected communication and files make coordination slower and increase duplicated work.

evidence_current0007	evidence_current0008	evidence_current0018	evidence_current0022	evidence_current0024
----------------------	----------------------	----------------------	----------------------	----------------------

5. Manual work consumes avoidable team capacity

Priority 76.3

Repeated manual steps consume staff time, slow throughput, and make growth harder to absorb.

Evidence, provenance, versions, and methodology

Deterministic code owns scores, rankings, scenario composition, schedules, costs, and ROI. Optional model output is schema-validated and evidence-bounded. Invalid or unavailable output falls back per role.

Evidence references appear beside every supported claim so a consultant can trace the source record without inferring provenance.
